The grade II listed conservatory started life as a greengrocer and florist in 1897, serving market garden vegetables and flowers that the Gee family grew on land over the road. The Gee family were renowned nurserymen in the North Oxford suburb at the time, selling indoor and outdoor plants, flowers, fruit and vegetables. They often grew these crops themselves just behind the conservatory, in what is still known as Norham Gardens. In 1985, Jeremy Mogford converted this vegetable, fruit & flower shop into Gees Restaurant & Bar.

Adjacent to the famous Victorian glasshouse, and with the glowing Secret Garden in sight, is Gees Gallery; a beautiful multifunctional private dining space. Gees Gallery upholds an authentic and organic feel, with bare stone walls, oak panelling and a flash of rich green marble. This spacious and light-filled space features a unique and evolving art collection, state-of-the-art video and conferencing equipment, and its own private bar. Personalise your menu and hold your dream event be it a birthday, wedding or any special occasion ...
